Chapter One

No waiting for an opening

Florence County has too few mental health professionals, and a video visit means you do not wait for a local opening.

Chapter Two

Finding out later

A milder form of ADHD can be managed well until the stresses of adult life pile up.

Chapter Three

Still rooted in childhood

For an adult diagnosis, symptoms must have started before age 12, so your history matters.

Chapter Four

Testing from home

If you have never had a formal evaluation, testing comes before treatment. It is self-pay and done on your own computer.

Chapter Five

A plan that fits

Care can include counseling for day-to-day organization and follow-up by video.

Epilogue

It is not too late to ask.

Many adults first wonder about attention when life gets busier. A careful evaluation by video gives you real answers without the drive.
